Seqtek

I worked as a front end developer at Seqtek for clients in Tulsa such as Quiktrip. Between bigger projects, I was involved designing internal marketing materials and concepting brochure websites.

Generic Coin

This was a short-lived cryptocurrency project that I had control over identity, marketing, and front end design. Built in React, the slot machine interface connected to the user's crypto wallet and delivered immediate spins and winnings.

Generic Coin

At 38 years young, Rick Gene is not just another community manager – he's the heart and soul of Generic Coin. Born and raised in the vibrant landscapes of Germany, Rick has channeled his deep passion for travel, dialogue, and leadership into a thriving career in the cryptocurrency industry.

Since 2016, Rick has been fostering connections and weaving robust networks within the crypto space. His knack for nurturing relationships, solving problems, and building a sense of belonging has led him to the forefront of community management roles in the crypto world. It's not just about coin statistics and market trends for Rick; it's about the people that make the crypto community vibrant and diverse.

As the Community Manager for Generic Coin, Rick is the primary bridge between the company and its global community. His primary aim is not just to build a strong, engaged community around Generic Coin but also to ensure that every member feels heard and valued.

But Rick isn't all work and no play. His lust for life extends beyond the boundaries of the crypto world. His spare time finds him wandering the beautiful terrains of Germany, hiking boots on and spirit tuned to nature's frequency. When he's not out exploring, he takes great joy in assembling computers from scratch - an intriguing hobby that serves as a testament to his technical prowess and innate curiosity.
